FOREWORD

DURING the past year, the Oracle, as well as the whole student body, has witnessed a change in the spirit of Bangor High School. There has come into the school a greater share of those intangible elements which go to make up "school spirit." This change has taken place on the football field, on the basketball court, at club meetings, in the corridors, and—most important—in the minds of the students.

This growth of school spirit has taken shape in the effort to work for school cooperation, to aid in projects for the benefit of the school, to encourage class spirit and pride.

And this evidence of cooperation has been seen on the Oracle board. To our adviser, Miss Jessie L. Fraser, to the students and teachers, and to the advertisers who have made the Oracle possible, go our sincerest thanks for their valuable aid and assistance; their efforts have led to a gratifying result: in the nation-wide competition of the National Scholastic Press Association, the Oracle was awarded the coveted first honors position.

Perhaps next year may see the presence of a student council, an assembly hall loudspeaker system, or a class-sponsored graduation ball. We cannot tell just what may come in these respects, but we can think of no better wish for those who succeed us, both as a class and as an Oracle Board, than that they may continue to foster and develop this ideal of school spirit and cooperative enterprise.

TO speak of debating at Bangor High School, is, in the minds of debaters and debate coaches both within and outside the state of Maine, to speak of Herbert L. Prescott. For, since he came to the school in the fall of 1930, just graduated from Bowdoin College, Mr. Prescott has raised the debate club to a flourishing organization of two hundred, has developed an average of one state league championship team a year, and has brought up the standards of debating throughout the state.

He has not only accomplished these things, but also through his teaching and through his writing, gained state and national reputation in educational circles.

Now he is leaving for further study at the University of Iowa. And, in dedicating to him this 1940 issue of the Oracle, we hope to show him, as he leaves, some part of the admiration and respect which we feel toward him as a teacher, as a coach, and as a friend.

WISDOM, THE GIFT OF GOD

by Dorothy Morrill

For wisdom is the gift of God,
Our strong weapon against the world,
Ne'er to be trampled on rough-shod;
It is our banner high unfurled.

With knowledge as our gleaming shield,
We'll trample ignorance, our foe;
We'll do, and dare in every field.
We'll seek for wisdom as we go.

For in these days of war and strife,
As ne'er before we need God's gift.
And when we face the storms of life,
It is our anchor, lest we drift.

And now farewell to carefree days;
Our toilsome life will soon begin.
Ours is the choice of many ways,
And with His gift, our goal we'll win.

ESSAYS

The Junior High School Comes To Bangor

by Daniel Orr

AMERICANS are a progressive lot, content with only the best. As in other fields where we have seen a need and gave found a suitable remedy, so in the field of education a change has become necessary.

The earliest forms of secondary education were the Latin schools and the academies. Both of these were private institutions to which only the rich could send their children. With the rise of a powerful middle class there came a demand for public secondary schools supported by taxation. The first of these high schools was established in the city of Boston in 1821 whence the idea spread to others of the large cities.

As the movement grew, new studies were added and others dropped, and the course lengthened to three and then four years. So great was its growth that at the turn of the century the high school had come to be considered an essential part of the educational system. Its purpose, however, had changed. Whereas the high school had been established to give a general secondary education to the masses, now it had become college preparatory in its nature.

At the same time there was an influx of students, so that the number of students attending high school was more than doubled. This increase was due to the passing of child-labor laws and the raising of the age limit for school attendance. As a result the schools became overcrowded and more work than he or she could handle was heaped upon the teacher. The preparation of the student entering high school was inadequate since there was little connection between his elementary and his secondary training. He would find himself bewildered by the different set-up of the high school as opposed to that of the elementary school.

At the close of the World War a need for reorganization and reform was acutely felt. Various ideas and methods of improvement were advanced. The best and most popular of these is the junior-high-school movement. For the short time of its existence it has made gigantic strides since it seems best to fulfill the requirements. It has been adopted by most of the larger cities and is now finding favor among the smaller ones.

Bangor is one among the small eastern cities which are becoming conscious of the inadequacy and inefficiency of their schools. It has a school system as old as the city itself. As a result many of its buildings are old and outmoded in addition to being much too overcrowded. For several years our authorities have seen that something had to be done to alter these conditions. They saw that the only way out of the situation is through the junior high schools now being built. A new day is drawing for the boys and girls of Bangor.

The chief aims of the junior high school are to bridge the gulf between the elementary and the high school; to teach the pupil to look to his future school and life work; to help him to choose this course wisely; and to induce him to work on his own initiative. Each of these needs further explanation.

There is a general feeling among teachers that completion of the eighth grade is an end in itself—that end being graduation. That is to say, the eighth elementary year has as its objective only enough work to accrue the required number of points for graduation. The greater part of the work covered in the seventh and eighth grades is review; therefore, it would seem that the essentials had been learned by the sixth grade. So, they ask, if this is so, why not go on and learn something new in the seventh and eighth grades?

The second aim of the junior high school is to help the pupil to look to his future. I have already said that there is little connection between the elementary and the high school work. Upon entering high school, the student is presented with a variety of courses from which to choose one. The subjects for the most part are entirely different from those which he has been studying, and he is confused. Having chosen his course, he may follow it for a couple of years, but by that time he discovers that it is too difficult or is not giving him the kind of

by David Rapaport

THE wheels of progress turn. The pendulum swings. Time makes many changes in the opportunities offered to us humans.

The other day I took my mind away from movies, dances, and studies and started to think seriously of my future. Graduation, then what? It was not a question facing me alone, but a problem thousands of young men and women graduating from high school and college must solve.

The more I thought about the question, the further I came from reaching any solution. I gave up trying to guess myself into a position, and decided to do a little research work. This is the exciting information that I discovered.

A recent reliable survey carried on by the American Magazine shows that there will be jobs for over 20,000,000 men and women in 1940. This proved that business is in the market for really competent people, and the opportunities offered to bright young men and women today are far better than we realize. Yes, there are opportunities, 20,000,000 jobs. The personnel manager of a leading life insurance company writing to the American Magazine says, I quote, "We have found thus far this year that the best college and high-school graduates have already been placed. And we are now beginning to have our offices visited by the second-grade applicants only."

This little bit of information made me feel better, but it by no means solved my problem. The next questions that I asked myself were: If there are 20,000,000 jobs to be had, how can I get one of them? How can I make myself be considered competent? If I should get a job, how could I keep it? Further research helped me to answer these questions also. This was my discovery.

Sidney W. Edlund, founder of the Man Marketing Clinic, has been able to draw up a sound set of principles for the job-hunter. He believes, and has led me to believe, that the job-hunter must consider himself a merchandising problem. One should not try to sell one self, but sell a service that will be valuable to one's employer. Dramatize your assets. Distinguish yourself from others seeking the same kind of job. Aim for a definite job. Get good letters of recommendation filled with facts. And always be confident in personal interviews.

I really became excited at this point in my research. It suddenly dawned upon me that my future would not be so dark as I had led myself to believe. Perhaps I might even be successful in obtaining a job immediately after graduation. But if this were the case, would I be able to fill the job satisfactorily? How would I be able to maintain the position? I answered these questions to my own satisfaction partly through research, but mostly through common sense.

Upon obtaining a position I must acquire certain qualities: *Progressiveness; level-headedness; loyalty, willingness, physical fitness, safety consciousness. I must be the sort of person who works for the joy of working. Most important of all, I must have a capacity for Change. I must always be alert to progress, always able to grasp and understand the new as well as the old. In regard to Change, Mr. Bruce Barton says, "You can be sure of only one thing about tomorrow—it will be different from today." There is opportunity for fortune by introducing Change.

*Qualities listed above taken from January, 1940 American Magazine. "This is the prayer for Youth today and always: Not, 'Lord keep safe,' but 'Lord keep me supple.' Not, 'Give us this day all freedom from worry,' but, 'Give us sufficient restlessness and unsatisfaction so that we will question and experiment, and hitch our wagons to the only star that is always in the ascendant—eternal, unceasing Change.'"

I am no longer despondent. I look upon my future with a new hope. Will the World give me a living? I know now that I alone hold the answer to that question. I must study hard, work hard, and keep alert to Change. I must determine to succeed, and I will succeed. The World will give me a living.

Eternal Vigilance

by Dorothy Braidy

AT various political rallies, at celebrations of national holidays, at public observances of all types one constantly hears fall from the golden mouths of orators the magic phrases, "Life, liberty, and the Pursuit of Happiness." Somehow there seems to be a fascinating quality in these words. They cast a spell over the mind of the listener. The important thing for us to remember, however, is that the true beauty of these phrases lies not in any combination of musical sounds, but in the truly deep significance of an expression of a great ideal. The principle of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, as guaranteed in the Bill of Rights has been the basis upon which our democracy has been built and has thrived.

We know that our forefathers bled to achieve this great ideal. In school we have read of the misery and the privation that were endured at Valley Forge. We know the battle that was fought for religious freedom. We have heard recited over and over the hardships that our early settlers underwent that we might have these rights. Yet in our enjoyment of these privileges, in the hustle and bustle of our modern life, we are very apt to lose sight of these efforts and their meaning. Just what, I ask you, do these words mean to you? Are they high sounding phrases with nothing behind them, or do these words represent some tangible quality? They should. That there would ever be a United States which did not embrace these qualities should seem inconceivable to most of us. And to that end we should all strive, that these United States of America and the right of every individual to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness should be synonymous.

At this time more than ever before, the burden is placed upon America to be the beacon light of the world. When we open our daily newspaper, when we turn the dial of our radio, when we see the newsreel in our motion picture house, we are constantly reminded of the tragic upheaval into which Europe has been plunged. We see before us a picture of brutal oppression—a civilization destroyed. Many of us still are unable to realize the actual situation as it exists in Europe. The Old World today has become a nightmare of horror and suffering.

The natural reaction to this catastrophe for most of us is to sit back and utter a sigh of relief that "thank heaven we live in this country." To a certain extent we are perfectly justified in making such a statement. Thank heaven we do live in a country miles away from a land where reason and sanity seem to have disappeared. What we must not for a minute forget is the fact that our present happy condition was obtained through much suffering, and that in order to retain this state we must keep eternal vigilance to these principles. We must be on the alert for any possible infringement of our rights. We must feel the responsibility that these privileges carry with them. We must not take our position for granted. To be an American today means that one also carries a great burden, for when this Reign of Terror is over, we in the New World must be the beacon light for all. We in our democratic land must be in a position to mend the spiritual and physical wounds of war torn Europe. We must be at a vantage point to show them the road back. Then we must remember this; we cannot play the role of physician unless we are free from all disease ourselves.

Perhaps there are those who will call such an attitude mere sentimentalism, but I would say to those that I am looking rather from a most humane and practical viewpoint. I tell you only to look at Europe today and ask yourselves if it doesn't contain a people gone mad. I ask you if it doesn't seem almost impossible that in 1940 such a situation should exist among supposedly civilized peoples. Surely the Europe of today has not been prompted by such principles as life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

For these reasons I say that now, more than ever before, America must take her place at the head. America must serve a two-fold purpose. We must first of all realize the dangers that surround us, and we must in every way live up to those principles upon which our

by Elaine Rowe

"FOREVER, O Lord, thy word is settled in heaven." In a day when men's hearts are failing within them and when peoples and even nations know not which way to turn, it is needful that we lay hold upon some sure and steadfast word; lest we lose ourselves, yea, our very souls in the utter darkness of uncertainty and confusion. These words spoken so many centuries ago by David, the sweet singer of Israel, come to us today as "the shadow of a great rock in a weary land." It is reasonable, then, that we seek to know more of this Word; the Word that has been a bulwark never failing; this Word that has stood with firmness the testings of time.

From the time of the early Roman suppression even to our own day, the light of the Bible has often burned low. There have been times when its flame seemed near extinction; yet it has defied the decree of kings and governments where many have imprisoned its owners and rewarded its destroyers. Many would be apt to imagine that Shakespeare has a wider range among the nations than any other writer of the world. It is interesting to note that in the actual tests made of the translation of his works into different languages, he must take third place. The Bible has been translated into nearly a thousand languages and dialects and to this day remains the best selling book of all literature. Whence then the privilege of this book, certainly a book among books, above others? There are three fundamental reasons why the Bible has lived where other books have failed and been forgotten:—It is the Word of God; it has a message and hope for this world; and it is radiant with a belief in a world to come.

In the first place, the Bible has reason to live, if for none other than its daring claim—that, to be the Word of God. "According to its own evaluation, revelation is its content, inspiration its method, and salvation its goal." Who but God could conceive and achieve such a plan? Many of those who would deny inspiration to the Bible are called upon to answer such questions as these. By what power did these humble writers prophesy of nations not yet existent and of kings yet unborn? How could Moses have given laws upon which the whole world has based its law unless he wrote as God spoke? Even the few scientific references in the Bible seem to have been written in anticipation of recent discoveries. While in early times people were wondering how far one could go on this flat earth before he dropped into space, the Bible held hidden away in its pages these words, "He that sitteth on the sphere of the earth." Although Harvey is claimed to be the discoverer of the law of blood circulation, yet written in God's word many centuries before—"The life of the flesh is in the blood."

Secondly, the Bible has lived because of its timeless and universal message. Perhaps the most amazing fact about the Bible is the way in which it has proved its power to meet and meet successfully the innumerable problems of every type of the human race. Although born in a little known corner of the world it fits into the geographical setting and racial thinking of all on earth. The Bible deals with those elemental things, the height and depths of human nature, like the kiss of a child, the tears shed beside the grave. These can never grow stale or out of date because they are the common heritage of mankind. Its message deals mainly with God, and his relation to the sons of men. In the Bible alone we find God drawing near to Mankind, preparing a chosen people to receive His message, gradually unfolding His nature and His will and at last manifesting His heart of love in the giving of His inmost self in Jesus. We can never realize the deepest message of Scripture until we see the personal dealings of God with men from age to age until finally the Eternal Father unveils His very heart in the person of His Son. The Bible holds for men sunk in selfishness and sin, the promise of a new life in fellowship with God.

Lastly, the Bible has lived because it answers the supreme interrogation of the human soul, "If a man die shall he live again?" From earliest time man has believed that this short span of years we call life is but the beginning of a

For Better Living

by Mary Bickford

WHEN you hear someone mention the Extension Service, do you really know what he is talking about? Perhaps you do, but there are many, I have noticed who do not have any idea of what a great organization it is.

The Extension Service is being brought to the attention of everyone now more than it was a few years ago, and people should know about its value so that they may receive the advantages which it offers.

At Washington, D. C., the United States department of Agriculture is made up of many working units. One of these is the Extension Service.

At Washington the foundation is laid for the working out of the state units, which are always centered at the College of Agriculture. Here the state specialists are working on the respective projects. They are experimenting on and developing each one. This knowledge is then passed on to the county offices which are known as the county Farm Bureaus.

The county Farm Bureaus are made up mostly of farm people, and each has its individual county officers and project leaders. These people are united with one interest—to help the rural people in their county to better living and homemaking. With this thought in mind, they elect three county agents to go among the people and teach them these things. There are three county agents: the County agent, who may have an assistant, who works with the farmers; the Home Demonstration agent, who may also have an assistant, whose purpose is to help the homemaker; and the 4-H Club agent, who teaches the boys and girls from ten to twenty-one years of age the better ways of doing agricultural and home economics projects.

We will begin with the work of the County agent because his work comes nearest to us and we can get the most benefit from it.

The County agents are interested in helping the farmers to better living by improved working conditions. Years ago, the farmer had a cow which he put out to pasture, milked, fed, and, when she got old, he either swapped, sold, or killed her and simply got another cow. To-day the farmer has been told many things which should be considered in his dairy work. Pasture improvement, continuous seeding of pasture land to provide for a longer time for grazing, and herd testing are only a few of the better dairying practices which mean a larger income for the dairyman.

Poultry is another source of the farmer's income in this vicinity. The poultryman today knows the value of building up his flock with better chickens and the advantages of early hatching to get more eggs in the summer when the prices are high. He is given plans for well ventilated hen houses and he realizes the value of keeping the houses dry. Many of the poultrymen can detect the most common diseases which must be looked after at once. These are some of the poultryman's problems which the County agent will help him with. There are also many bulletins which he may have free for the asking.

The potato grower has his troubles. At the present the greatest of these is a disease called Ring Rot. A few years ago this disease was not known, but it is now present in twenty-seven states and in practically every potato-growing section of the county. It will spread from one potato to the whole barrel in time. It is probably the most serious situation the potato grower has ever had. The Extension Service is putting its entire resources to work on this disease, and it is trying to help the farmer in eradicating it. Of course there are many good things to be said for the potato-grower. There are the methods for better seed and spray service.

The County agent is interested in having the farmer keep a record of his farm business; that is, what is taken in, what goes out, and what for. In this way, he can find out the leaks and stop them, that his farm may be run on a true business basis. This is just as important to the little farmer as it is to the big one. It is as essential for the farmer to know about his business as it is for a business house in town. The Farm Account, a book printed

The Army's Peacetime Accomplishments

by William Merrill

IF you will study the history of the United States from its very beginning, you will find that never once has the Army been responsible directly or indirectly for bringing about any of our wars. That is not the mission of the Army. The mission of the Army has been to restore peace to the people after they have lost it.

I do not intend to review the record of the Army in carrying out its mission, for the history of our wars and the restoration of peace is familiar to you all. I would prefer, rather, to review some of the accomplishments of the Army in time of peace.

In 1803, the Government bought the Louisiana Purchase. Little was known of the land acquired, except that it was vast territory of high mountains, impenetrable forests, and rushing rivers, where hostile Indians ruled. To explore this new territory and to reveal its resources, Captain Lewis and Lieutenant Clark were sent on an expedition. These two young officers started on their journey in 1803 and spent over two years traversing this wild, uncharted country to the Pacific Ocean and back. They made surveys and maps, hewed trails, and gained much information of great value to the early pioneers.

The Army engineers surveyed and marked practically every boundary of the United States and most of the state boundaries. They helped dig the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal and the Erie Canal. They surveyed many lakes, including the Great Lakes; they built lighthouses to make navigation safer; they increased the depth and width of the channels in all the important harbors of our country.

In the National Capital, Army engineers built the Washington Monument, the Library of Congress, the old Post Office Building, the Government Printing Office, the Municipal Building, the War College, the Agriculture Building, and even the wings and dome of the Capitol itself. Army engineers supervised the construction of the Lincoln Memorial and practically all of the park system of the District of Columbia.

The Army has played a pioneer part in improving methods of rapid communication. The telegraph systems of the country had a very rapid growth just after the Civil War, largely because of the work the Signal Corps of the Army had done in building systems for war use. The Army has also been a pioneer in developing the radio.

The Air Corps has been among the first to develop air transportation and air routes. The present transcontinental air routes, over which our large passenger and mail-carrying transports operate, were surveyed and developed by the Army Air Corps before being turned over to the Department of Commerce as a commercial enterprise.

Probably the Army's greatest contribution to national sport, and one which has given pleasure to hundreds of thousands of men, women, and children, is the game of baseball, which was started in the Army.

The Army has rendered aid in many disasters. After the San Francisco earthquake of 1906, the Army took charge and brought order out of the confusion.

In 1910, the Army played an important part in fighting forest fires in the states of Washington, Idaho, Montana, and Oregon.

The Army did complimentary work in the Ohio and Mississippi floods of 1912 and in the Galveston flood of 1915.

When the roof of the Knickerbocker Theatre collapsed in Washington, D. C., in 1922, Army officers were largely responsible for the organization of the rescue work which was carried on continuously for twenty-four hours.

At the time of the St. Louis tornado of 1927, the Army rendered assistance to the organized police and fire department forces of the city in relief and rescue work and in guarding property.

In the Mississippi flood of 1927, nearly a million people were driven from their homes and about twelve million, eight hundred thousand acres of land were under water. The Army Quartermaster Corps issued tents, cooking ranges, cots, blankets, bed-sacks, and cooking apparatus of all kinds.

ACTIVITIES

The Oracle Board

PILOTED by Kendall Cole, editor-in-chief, and Balfour Golden, business manager, who were aided by an able crew, the Oracle, this year completed with flying colors another successful season as it approached the half-century mark of its existence.

Laurel wreaths and gold palms are joyously awarded to Everett Orbeton, George Robinson, and Paul Ford for their never-ending willingness to help out in an emergency, to Bob Petterson and Sylvia Pond for the swell block-cuts, and to Kay Fernald, a capable dean of the typing staff.

Also outstanding in their work were Joe Eaton, radio; Giulio Barbero, who did double duty in the book and art departments; artist Esther Smith; the literary editors, Dorothy Braidy and Natalie Costrell; and athletic reporters Lois Hardison and Bill Fellows. Good records were also made by Barbara Clement and Irene Rowe, "Activities"; and by columnists Ruth Carlisle and Louise Eastman who originated the "Fashion" column, latest addition to the Oracle's numerous departments.

Yeoman work was done by the business staff and by the typists, to whom we give our sincere thanks, as we do to Lois Vincent, who, though not an Oracle board member this year, did the fine cover for the March issue.

Under the guidance of Miss Jessie L. Fraser, faculty adviser, the Oracle's rating by the National Scholastic Press Association this year again reached the enviable position of First Honors, being topped by only three other schools in our class in the nation. To the staff of the 1940-41 Oracle, we of the staff of the 1939-40 Oracle give our best wishes for the continuance of the record set for them and for us by Oracle boards of the past. . . Farewell and fare well !

ALTHOUGH the juniors and sophomores made valiant efforts to keep the superior seniors from winning the hockey championship, they were unsuccessful. All the games were close, but the seniors just couldn't be held back, and their captain accepted the victory cup at the annual hockey party. From the players of these teams, an honorary team was chosen. These girls were chosen for their outstanding playing, good sportsmanship, and regular attendance at practices and games. Commercial Club

THIS year marks the fifth successful year of the Bangor High School Commercial Club. Election of officers and committee chairman highlighted the first meeting of the organization. The officers and chairmen elected were as follows: Harvard Weatherbee, President; Marie Zoidis, Vice-president; Helen Gruber, Secretary; Eben Stinchfield, Treasurer; Phyllis Fletcher, Publicity Chairman; Dorothy Hart, Social Chairman; and Carolyn Fernald, Program Chairman.

As many members as possible take part in the programs, which usually consist of club business, a guest speaker, a bit of entertainment, and a "Forum." The "Forum" consists of an oral report, based on research of particular topics of interest to Commercial students followed by open discussion by the members of the club. The subjects of forums given this year included, "Necessity of Accuracy," "What the Office Employee Should Wear," "What To Do Before and After You Get a Job," "Conduct in the Office," "Correct Use of the Telephone," and others.

Among this year's speakers have been Mr. Harold Sanborn, Manager of F. W. Woolworth Co., and President of Bangor Chamber of Commerce, who gave a most interesting and valuable talk on "Necessary Qualifications of an Office and Store Employee; Miss Catherine Mullen, Head of the English department, who spoke on "A Trip to the English Parliament"; Mr. Earl Merri- man, Manager of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company, who spoke on "The Cor- rect Use of the Telephone by the Office Employee," and who showed a three-reel movie on his

Girls' Band

THE Girls' Band is an active organization although it has insufficient members to operate as a separate unit. However, they have provided themselves with attractive uniforms which added much to their appearance at the games. Though small in number, they are enthusiastic in their support of the school band and are a valuable part of it.

At the Festival held in Waterville on May eleventh, the girls occupied the place in line which they had during the games and played with the boys' band, thereby making a colorful escort for the members of the music clubs. With so many groups from every part of the state taking part in the festival, it was considered best not to enter as a separate unit; but they played as members of the Bangor High School Band at the exhibition concert.

These girls are hard-working, enthusiastic, and aggressive, and refuse to become absorbed by the major band. With a continuation of such spirit, the future of a girls' band in Bangor High School seems assured, and this small group may well be proud of the part they have played in its founding.

Public Affairs Club

NO club has enjoyed a more successful year than the thoroughly active Public Affairs Club. With seriousness and interest, characteristics of a successful club, and a few generous pieces of humor, the club has learned valuable information about the late Senator W. A. Borah, Senator Vandenberg, Secretary of State Cordell Hull, Thomas E. Dewey, and Senator Carter Glass. With due respect to the gentlemen mentioned above we enjoyed also the casual and engaging manner of our guests who were Lucille Epstein, Betty Mack, and Frederick Stetson, alumni of Bangor High School.

Basketball

AFTER a somewhat shaky start, Eddie Trowell's 1940 basketeers slipped into high gear, bowled over all opposition from Northern and Eastern Maine, and reached the finals in the State of Maine championship. Led by Captain Dick Morse and Phil Jameson, the Rams fielded their highest scoring contingent since the early '20's. On their home court, the Trowellmen compiled the amazing average of better than 40 points a game. Some of the leading victories included those over Winslow 50-36, 41-36; John Bapst 58-38; 45-20; Brewer 38-22, 35-18; Dover-Foxcroft, the Piscataquis county champs 32-26, and Dexter, 37-17.

In the opening round of the Maine Interscholastic Tournament, Bangor officially opened the tourney by outclassing Bar Harbor High 46-24. Phil Jameson topped all scorers with 17 points, and Captain Morse was right behind him with 15 points. The back court work of rugged Windy Work was outstanding. On the following evening, the Rams, upset the Minutemen from Stearns High School to the tune of 33-20. Although weakened by the loss of Captain Morse early in the second period, the Rams, paced again by Phil Jameson pulled the game out of the fire.

In the Eastern Maine finals before a crowd of 2200, the Rams took a hair raising victory from the highly-touted Presque Isle Wildcats. Windy Work was half hero of this battle, for

Football

THIS year the Athletic Department secured the services of Mose Nanigian and Al Kent. What they have done for the High School football team is seen in the results of the games that the Rams have played this season.

The athletic department also purchased some new equipment for the players, such as shoulder pads, shoes, helmets, etc.

As for the players themselves, who can forget the accurate passes of Dick Morse, the hard running of Windy Work, the smoothness of Burleigh Carson, ends like Bob Emerson and Hal Littlefield? And, of course, we shall not forget the linemen, such as Phil Higgins, Brian Mooers, Duny Work, Adrian Miner, and Garland Strang, nor the hard running of Bud Mullins.

The most exciting game of the season was the 7 to 7 tie with Portland when nearly everything happened.

Bangor school spirit reached a new high when about two hundred students went over to Lewiston for that game.

The Rams won 6, lost 2, and tied 1. Complete results are as follows:

Baseball

ON April first the first call for baseball candidates was issued by Coach Nanigian. Battery candidates responded to the call. Shortly afterwards, other candidates were out shagging flies and fielding ball on Hayford's field. After two more weeks of hard work, the squad was cut. From the boys retained on the squad, Mr. Nanigian formed a promising club. The hopes of the team were lessened by the sudden illness of Phil Jameson, who had been a stellar second-sacker and catcher on Ram teams for three years. Tribute should be paid to the game lad who at this writing is staging the greatest comeback of his life at the Eastern Maine General Hospital.

Dick Morse, three letter man and shortstop on last year's team, can more than hold his own on first base. Second base is divided between Harold Chason and John Thompson, both veterans. Eddie Babcock, who has come along fast, covers short-stop's position. Sid Chason is one of the best third basemen in the league. Frank Blaisdell, a veteran in every sense of the word, is catcher.

The outfield prospects appear to be very bright. Windy Work and his brother Duny and Irving Robinson form the outfield. With this team in behind him a pitcher need hardly worry. But it is the opposition who worry when Wilbur Braley toes the mound. Lefty Johnny Woodcock, another two year veteran, and Phil Perry are able aides to Wilbur. Ray Mersereau, Fred Brown, and Lefty Wayne Hodgdon round out a strong pitching staff. At this writing the Rams have won all their games and are competing with Bar Harbor for the News League Championship.

Boys' Winter Sports Club

SINCE its first meeting in early December, the Winter Sports Club has enjoyed a very successful season. Starting with only a few boys, it grew until it had a large number of members. The club held several skating and skiing meets. It brought the movie "Ski Flight" to the high school and also sponsored a fine "vic" dance. Its only money making ventures were a not-too-successful pencil sale, and the very successful "vic" dance mentioned before. This dance brought the activities of the club to a close for this winter.

The club's first meeting was called on December sixth. A large group of winter sport enthusiasts turned out, and officers were elected as follows:

President.....	Richard Fellows
Vice-President.....	Thomas Hilton
Treasurer.....	Phillip Murdock
Secretary.....	Garry Speirs

Jack Campbell, Grover Condon, and Webster Frost were elected to the chairmanships of the entertainment, skating, and skiing committees respectively, and Bill Fellows and John Brookings rounded out the executive board.

Meetings were held bi-monthly throughout the winter, the main objective of the club being to build for next year when it hopes to sponsor a ski team and possibly a hockey team.

Girls' Basketball

SOMETHING happened this year in Girls' Interclass Basketball that, as far as we know, has never before happened at Bangor High. Three teams tied for first place; therefore, three teams won the interclass championship. The Seniors, Juniors, and Red Freshmen make up the All-Bangor Team.

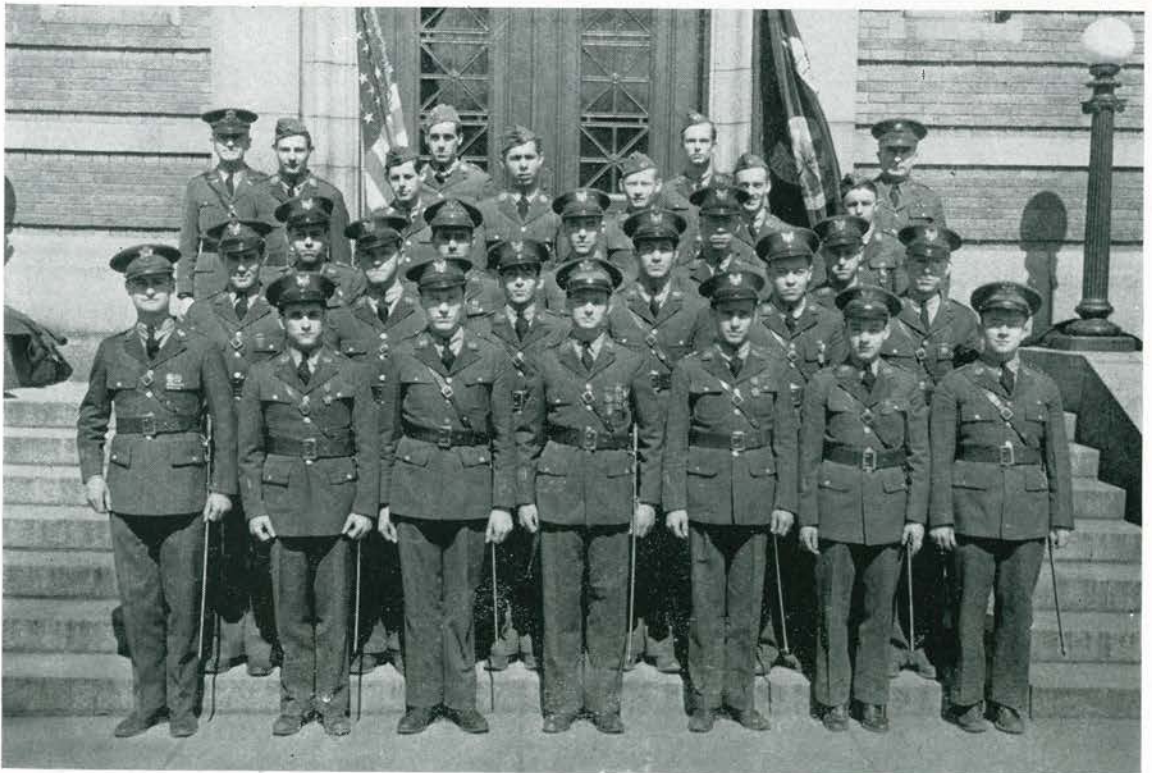

The record of the teams is as follows:

Team	Won	Lost	Tied
Seniors	4	1
Juniors	4	1
Red Frosh	4	1
Blue Frosh	2	3
Sophomores	0	4	1
Commercial Sophomores	0	4	1

Officers' Club

THE Officers' Club, made up of senior officers in the R. O. T. C., has presented three outstanding dances this year. The Blue and Gold Dance, held during the fall, proved a welcome relief from the stiff first quarter grind. The Annual Mid-Year Hop was held at the end of the second quarter. This dance even surpassed the first. Then, of course, we had the Military Ball. The ball this year proved to be the most successful in the history of the school. It was a fitting finale for the excellent spring inspection. Approximately four hundred attended the Military Ball, which was held in the attractively decorated Bangor High School Auditorium. The color scheme was blue and gold in keeping with the Army tradition.

The inspection this year proved to be a great credit to our high school. After two and one-half days of practice, to say nothing of all the drill days, one could really see the results of Major Ragan's toil and worry. The seniors should feel thrilled that this was one of the best organizations ever turned out of Bangor High, and this fact was not just a coincidence. Moreover, each and every officer performed his duty with skill and precision which was a credit to the unit, the Officers' Club, and Bangor High School.

Rifle Club

UNDER the leadership of Coach Frank D. Donchez, the Rifle Club has had a successful season this year. They won five of their matches and lost two, those being to El Paso High School and Hillsborough High School of Tampa, Florida. The club won second in the Corps Area and William Randolph Hearst matches. In the Hearst Trophy Match, Lloyd Burnett won second place in the individual scoring with a 192 out of a possible 200 for four positions. The club had one shoulder-to-shoulder match with the Penobscot Rifle and Pistol Club. Out of thirty-one matches in the last three years, the club has lost only three for a very high percentage of wins. It is looking forward to a successful season next year with only two men graduating this June.

Officers for the year were as follows:

President.....	Lloyd Burnett
Manager.....	Earl Kingsbury
Secretary-Treasurer.....	Edgar Pearson, Jr.
Captain.....	Robert Leavitt

Science Club

GREAT progress has this year marked the season of the Science Club. With a fuller schedule than ever before and with a larger membership than in the past, the Science Club has really been going this year.

The first meeting of the year of course featured the election of officers, chosen as follows:

President.....	Edward Babcock
Vice-President.....	Betty O'Connell
Secretary-Treasurer.....	Jack Friedman

Next on the year's schedule was the presentation of a scientific movie, through the courtesy of the Esso Company. A field trip through the Eastern Manufacturing Company and a field trip through the Telephone Company were the next features of the season's program.

Rounding out the Science Club year came the presentation of a movie over scientific electrical facts by the Telephone Company.

In reviewing the year's activities of the club, we should like to express our appreciation to Mr. Downing, our faculty advisor, and to the various industrial organizations which have cooperated so well in making our year's work so profitable and enjoyable.

Cheerleaders

FOOTBALL games started off with a burst of school spirit this year, with six cheerleaders out front to keep it up. The cheerleaders were right there at every game, rain or shine.

They also followed the team on special trains to lead all the loyal supporters who went to Waterville, Lewiston, and Augusta. The cheerleaders also participated in assembly rallies, with Evelyn Rice leading the program.

The cheerleaders were on hand for all the basketball games too, and cheered the team right into the championship of the Eastern Maine Tournament.

Homec Club

THE Homec Club has had a very successful season. In November a banquet was held at the Bangor House in honor of the incoming sophomores. Each new member was admitted to the club with an impressive initiation ceremony. During December a very successful handicraft sale was conducted, and a Christmas party was enjoyed.

This year the Homec Club became affiliated with the State and National Home Economics Clubs. A state convention was held in Augusta, May 11, 1940, to which we sent seven delegates. In February a Valentine party was held, and in April we presented an assembly program.

We have also had exhibitions of our projects of tableaux and historical sketches of five presidents' wives at several times, and we prepared and served a banquet to the dramatic clubs competing in the One Act Play Contest in Bangor.

Many outside activities have been completed including a program for the Home for Aged Women. On May 28th an afternoon tea was held for mothers, to which the entire department was invited. Our final meeting and a climax to a very successful year will be held in the form of an outing to Cape Rosier in June.

National Honor Society

THE Society, consisting of thirteen members elected at the close of last school year, met in January and elected the following officers: John Woodcock, President; John Johnstone, Vice-President; Barbara Perry, Secretary; and Kendall Cole, Treasurer. At this meeting Mr. Chaplin led a discussion of Student Councils and College Rooms.

In April, several meetings were held to discuss the proposal of having the Senior Class sponsor a Graduation Ball at the High School. At one of these meetings Superintendent Arthur E. Pierce spoke and conducted a lively discussion of various questions about the project. At a short recess meeting, the second semester officers were elected, the slate consisting of Robert Petterson, President; Giulio Barbero, Vice-President; Carolyn Fernald, Secretary; and Irene Rowe, Treasurer. The chapter had charge of the May third Assembly Program, at that time inducting twenty six seniors who had been selected by the faculty as having the highest standards of Scholarship, Character, Leadership, and Service.

Those elected were as follows:

Senior Orchestra

THE Senior Orchestra will complete another very successful year when it makes its final appearance at graduation. As in past years, the orchestra has played at numerous school functions. Among these were the Dramatic Club Play Wings of Morning, the Junior Exhibition, the One-Act Play Contest, the Eastern Maine Festival at Waterville, the Annual Music Concert in the City Hall, and Graduation. The "March of the Priests," from Athlelia, by Mendelssohn and the overture to Mneille, by Gounod were the selections rendered at the Junior Exhibition, and the Slavonic Dance by Dvorak and "Frändole" from L'Arlesienne Suite by Bizet were played at the Festival at Waterville. The orchestra has also presented numerous other numbers including several marches.

As usual, the orchestra has been under the direction of Prof. Adelbert Sprague who deserves a great deal of credit for his work with the group. Dallas Bubar was the concertmistress for the year, and Everett Orbeton the president.

Following the practice of the last two years the string section to the Junior Orchestra entered the Senior Orchestra during April.

Girls' Glee Club

THE Glee Club has had a very interesting and enjoyable year under the capable direction of Mrs. Evangeline Huey. At the beginning of the year they elected the following officers:

President	Sylvia Smith
Vice-President	Connie Dubey
Secretary-Treasurer	Nancy Morgan

The club made its first appearance in the assembly program called the "Chapel Hour." The group sang next at the Christmas Party of the Bangor Teachers' Club.

One of the major projects this year was the Musical Revue which was presented the afternoon and evening of April sixth. The Revue was an original play written by Mrs. Huey, who was assisted by Virginia Paine and Paul Ford.

Soloists on the evening program were Constance Dubey and Harvard Weatherbee.

The Club also made a very fine showing at the Eastern Music Festival held in Waterville May eleventh. One of their songs was a very lovely arrangement of the Danube River.

The girls wore uniforms consisting of maroon skirts and socks, white sweaters, and maroon and white emblems. They also sang on May tenth for the Bangor Men's Chorus, and at the Annual Music Concert in the City Hall.

Senior Dramatic Club

THE Senior Dramatic Club, that institution which every underclassman looks forward to joining, has finished another successful year. Harvard Weatherbee started as president of the club; but because of a conflict with the nine point system, he resigned and was succeeded by Herbert Travis. Paul Ford was vice-president; Ruth Carlisle pushed the secretary's pen, while Everett Orbeton posed as treasurer.

Miss Haney, the club's faculty advisor, met the great actors for the first time on October 4, 1939. She outlined the year's program and gave the members some tips on acting.

The first Wednesday of November brought us our second informative meeting, with Miss Haney explaining the technique of acting on stage. Mrs. Marion Bradshaw gave us a very interesting talk on the subject, "The Shakespearean Stage and Actors."

Miss Ruth Powers and Miss Barbara Scribner were chair-women of the February seventh meeting.

On March 6, 1940 the members witnessed a rehearsal of the one act play with which the club competed in the Eastern Maine one-act play contest. The play won second honors in this competition.

Mr. Russell Hobbs, president of the Bangor-Brewer Little Theater, told us at our April meeting what we should expect from amateur dramatic experience. "Business methods, appreciation of acting, self-assurance, and many other desirable qualities can be had through the stage," said Mr. Hobbs.

Climaxing the season of the Dramatic Club came that annual senior play, presented at the school on May 17, this year's offering being the comedy, Young April.

Band

THE Bangor High School band this year enjoyed a most successful season. Under the direction of Mr. Devoe, Student Leader Everett Orbeton, and Drum Major Waldo Libbey, the band was on hand for the first football game.

On Armistice Day, the band put on one of its finest exhibitions in years, considering the short period of preparation. Per usual, after the football season was completed, the basketball season entered in full swing with the band right on the ball. Although it was quite a pull to transport all of the band to the auditorium twice every week, it was successfully managed. As anyone will tell you, the band impressed each and everyone of us, and gained much credit for the school. About the first of February Mr. Devoe started to perfect the selections which were later played in Waterville at the State Band Contest on May eleventh. During the intervening time the band appeared six times on assembly programs. Around came May and the band performed admirably at Waterville.

The May inspection of the R. O. T. C. could never be complete without the military music of the band. Appearing as one of the best drilled organizations in the history of the school, the band, under the leadership of Assistant Leader Maurice O. Orbeton, Jr., was a great asset in helping the R. O. T. C. to maintain its excellent rating. The inspection was a fitting close for a great year for the band.

Boys' Glee Club

AT the start of the season of the Boys' Glee Club, a great amount of rather rough and unpolished material appeared, for the meeting, to the great joy of its versatile director, Mrs. Evangeline Huey. After a little sand-papering, the boys glee club was whipped into shape, making its first public appearance during the "Cathedral Hour," presented by the combined glee clubs on December fourteenth. The next accomplishment of the boys' glee club (aided by the girls') was the musical revue presented on April eighth. This revue was called "Toyland" because of its similarity to Victor Herbert's great light opera of the same name. The high light of the show came when Prince Charming (Waldo Libbey) sang his touching love song to la petite Lucy Leavitt while holding her hand tenderly. On May eleventh, the boys went by train to Waterville where they sang nobly for the Maine Music Festival, the club receiving great praise for their formidable performance. Two weeks later the boys' glee club closed its activities at the completion of the music concert at the city hall.

Girls' Athletic Honor Council

THIS year the council has carried out many activities. During the fall season the council held ice cream and candy sales at the football games. Also, the girls coached hockey teams, and held their annual hockey banquet. At this banquet three girls were taken into the council; Dorothy Braidy, Hilda Banks, and Jennie Johnson.

After a very successful basketball season, the girls held their banquet at the Banger House. Miss McGuire presented the awards. At this time Mary Floros, Ruth Drew, and Marie Duffy were taken into the council. Second honors were presented to Betty Day, Marie Hilton, and Natalie Costrell. Frances Roberts received the third-honor arm band, the highest honor that can be achieved by a council girl. Speakers were: Toastmistress, Dorothy Braidy; Class Basketball, Roberta Curran and Mary Moran; Hockey, Marie Hilton; Senior Basketball, Betty Day.

The council this year in a morning assembly took in three new members. They were Ruth Palmer, Marie Zoidis, and Betty West.

Besides the teaching of freshman gym classes, and coaching of basketball teams, the council girls sold refreshments at the Winter Sports Club dance. They also assisted in a candy sale held by the Track club.

Officers elected for next year are Louine Kimball, president; Florence Prusaitis, vice-president; Ruth Palmer, Secretary; and Jennie Johnson, Treasurer.

Track

THIS year, more than ever, track has played an important part in the athletic system of Bangor High School. Shortly after Armistice Day, thirty-nine boys responded to the call of Coach O'Connor. The track club was duly organized, and the following officers were elected:

President—Melvin Lee.

Vice-President—Robert Emerson.

Secretary and Treasurer—Adrian Miner.

Because of the splendid cooperation of the officials of the University of Maine we are allowed to use their indoor and outdoor facilities for both practicing and meets.

Thus far there have been two meets. In the first one, Bangor combined with South Portland to meet the U. of M. freshmen. Although the final score was overwhelmingly in favor of the strong frosh team, the coach was very pleased with the showing we made. Emerson tied for first in the pole-vault, and took a third in the broad jump, Hickson tied for second in the high jump, and Miner took third place in the discus throw. For our second meet we journeyed to Brunswick to compete in the Bowdoin interscholastics. Although Hal Hickson tied for third in the high jump, and Bill Cox, Melvin Lee, and Bill Turner turned in some fine running, the Massachusetts teams proved too strong for the relatively inexperienced Ram squad.

Latin Club

WITH the banquet of a. d. IV Kal. Iun., Latin Club concluded another successful year. The enrollment has been larger than ever before in the history of the club, and the average attendance at meetings has reached a new high. In fact, the Latin Club, with all its strict requirements for membership has grown so rapidly that there is a plan being discussed, (intended to be entirely sub rosa, but we get around!) for limiting the number of members in the future.

The year's slogan has been: "The Romans were human." The purpose of the programs was to relate our Latin authors and their times, with modern days and modern customs. In fact, we have come to the conclusion that not only were the Romans human, but that they were modern.

With this end in view, the year began with a discussion of New Deal methods in old Rome. "Classics and the World's Fair"—"War, Old Style and New" also related and contrasted this century with the age of Rome's greatness. Even the Saturnalia and the Valentine party connected us with antiquity, for we discovered that Valentine's Day and Leap Year are but two of our many legacies from Rome; and the meeting of the Roman senate, ably staged by the Juniors in April, was a marvellous mingling of the 20th century ideas (totalitarianism being uppermost) with the thought of the last century B. C.

The S. P. Q. R. grew up this year, and attained the proportions of a real school publication. To all who helped Make this the best year in our history, we would say:

Gratias summas agimus

Tennis Team

THIS year the tennis team has a full schedule. There are ten matches including a three day trip to Aroostook. Because of the late snow, the team was unable to practice on the courts at Bass Park. As a result, the first match was lost by the score of 4-3. With more practice the team should come through with flying colors.

Hasting, Chalmers, and Broder are the only veterans on the team. Some of the more promising new players are Crosby, Chalmers, Hussey, Burr, Jacobs, McLean, and Weatherbee.

Bob Hanson succeeds Carleton Ranks as manager this year.

The complete schedule is as follows:

May	8	Winslow at Winslow
May	15	Wassokeag at Bangor
May	17	Houlton at Bangor
May	20	Wassokeag at Wassokeag
May	23	Maine Freshmen at Maine
May	25	Ricker at Bangor
May	27	Dover-Foxcroft at Bangor
May	30	Ricker at Ricker
June	1	Houlton at Houlton

Our spring outdoor meets are as follows:

May 4—Winslow and Rockland at Winslow.

May 8—A combined meet against the Maine Freshmen at Orono.

May 14—Lincoln Academy and Bangor vs. M. C. I. at Pittsfield.

May 18—Foxcroft Academy at Dover-Foxcroft.

May 21—Old Town and Bar Harbor at Old Town.

May 27—County Meet at Orono.

June 1—State Meet at Portland.

With such fine performers as Bob Emerson and Hal Hickson in the pole-vault and high jump, Melvin Lee, Garland Strang, Dick Farrell, and Bill Turner in the distances, Ernie Monroe, "Gert" Pattern, John Haney, and Sumner Chalmers in the dashes, and "Asia" Miner, "Squetch" Van Aken and "Governor" Morrissey in the field events. The team placed well in the county meet and made a record of which the whole school may well be proud.

in the over-time period, with the score knotted at twenty all, big Windy grabbed a Wildcat pass and raced down to Bangor's basket. However, Windy was going so fast that he wasn't in position for the shot and the ball rolled off the rim. The Bangor fans groaned. Their groans turned to cheers, however, as Dick Morse grabbed the ball from the air and went high into the air for an easy push-up shot that meant the game 28-20. After the game, Phil Jameson was presented with a beautiful trophy for being judged the best individual player in the tourney.

Unfortunately the Rams were knocked out of the battle for the State championship by Cheverus, 24-17. Letter winners were Colonel Dick, Winslow Work, Philip Jameson, Charles Carson, Wendall Cary, Sidney Chason, Irving Broder, John Woodcock, and Robert Emerson.

subject; and Mr. Preble Hatch, President of the Bangor Credit Bureau, who spoke on, "The Work of a Credit Bureau."

Other features of educational value were the "Field Trips." The field trips give a splendid opportunity for club members to observe office procedure, to become familiar with certain aspects of business that cannot well be presented in the class room, to see the operation of office machine equipment, and in general to bring Commercial students into closer relationship with business. This year the club was conducted through the Telephone Building, through the Bangor Daily News plant, and through the Post-office building. Plans have been made to make other trips if time permits.

We, the members of the Commercial Club express our thanks and appreciation to the business men of our city who have kindly given their valuable time to speak before the club, and to those who have so courteously conducted us through their places of business.

For entertainment, we have had piano solos, vocal solos, readings, a book report on "Handwriting—Mind your P's and Q's," by Jerome S. Meyer, which points out the relationship of one's handwriting to one's character, and a skit entitled, "Applying for a Position." The outstanding social events of the year were the Christmas party, held in the High School assembly hall with the exchange of gifts, and entertainment; and the Valentine party. The final social event was a picnic, which was held at the Oak Grove picnic grounds.

We, the Commercial Club members give our thanks and appreciation to Miss Janice R. Moore, club sponsor, who has made our club possible.

HOKUM

WITH tears of sorrow in my evil-seeking eyes, I, for the last time, pick up my pen to denounce the actions of my dear fellow dismals here at school. However, I guess I can brace up long enough to copy down the items recorded in my little black book. I'll try, anyway.

Now let's see; the first notation concerns Bob Hill whom we saw one day last week giving driving lessons to a blond sophomore!

Dick Morse and Sukey Giddings have been in each other's company quite a bit lately. They use for an excuse the rehearsals for But The Way Was Barred, being filmed at Fort Knox!

And then there's that old flirt of a Bud Babcock who seemed of late to be going (again) with Barbara Foley or Connie Dubey. We couldn't decide which because we saw him gadding about with "Phil" Casey one night here at play rehearsal. That was the same night June Winchell came prancing out of the school seeking "Pudgy." Wondering who on earth "Pudgy" was, we learned it to be, of all people, Mac Hardy! Isn't that killing?

I just got word that the Woodcock-Hilton feud is over. That lasted nearly six weeks. John must feel "quite stout" now! !—as must Marie.

And then there's the sad case of Mr. Smith, Mr. Earl Smith, who hasn't been in the Oracle since he entered B. H. S. sixteen years ago. If I told what I knew about him and Phyllis Casey, he wouldn't want to be in for another sixteen years. Oh well, 307 is a nice place—to listen to lectures of course!

We saw John Johnstone swaggering home the other night with a bodacious blond who plays piano in the orchestra. Isn't John the old cut-up though? He nearly annihilated me last week when he thought I was going to make a derogatory remark about Brian Mocer's beloved Alice Warren; as though I of all people, would harm so tender a morsel!

Step into 208 any second period when plays are being read, and listen to Bob Leavitt in his roles. He would put Garrick himself to sleep—er, I mean to shame!

If any of you young men care to know, (and I know one that does) Ruth Powers loves to attend theatre parties! "A word to the wise . . .", I always say.

That reminds me, Tommy Gleason, shy fellow, pulled a Miles Standish a while ago, when he, being too bashful to ask for Ruthie

Carlisle's picture, hired a henchman from Calais to get the much-desired likeness.

And here's news to which I, myself, was an eye-witness. (In fact this was about the first of any of my items that I've actually seen happen.) One night, here at play rehearsal, I saw Lois Hardison and Danny Orr going through a "performance," but I thought nothing of it for I presumed it to be a part of the play. But when I attended the play, I did not see that "performance," to which I was a witness, nor did Danny play a part that even called for such actions. There now! Hmmm!

Joe Eaton's on the radio now, and good he is too. Tune in and listen to him on WLBZ. "Woodcock International" undoubtedly will soon be on his trail! Nothing is too good for them!

If you had noticed the audience of Young April, you might have seen that much of Kendall Cole's attention was directed to his right, rather than to the front. I craned my stout neck over there and was not at all surprised when I saw beside whom he was seated. Need I tell you it was Miss Vincent?

We see that George McLean has changed brunette for blonde. A hint as to who she is; She can play The Glowworm better than Paul Linke! I'd like to tell that it's Dottie Murch but I can't cause this is restricted to Seniors—sorry.

You'd think that a boy as familiar with Bangor as Robbie Hanson is would know better than attempt crossing to Webster Avenue North from the upper end of Elizabeth Avenue—especially in early spring. With him was Prudy Speirs, and did he get stuck—in the road I mean not with Prudy, O mercy, no! However Bob Blake and Bob Clark happened along and pulled 'em out. (I bet Robbie was glad to see them!)

If Maurice "Simon Legree" Orbeton doesn't accost me and hit me stoutly with a great club on my way to school tomorrow, this, my last Hokum, will be printed as my farewell token, as I depart forever from this office through which I've come to know more people than otherwise I could possibly have hoped to. Don't hold against me anything I've written concerning you this year for it was all in the spirit of fun and should be accepted as such—even my cracks in regard to Golden and his atrocious singing ("Horrible to be heard", Virgil) and so I bid ye all a fareye well—Good Bye ". . . and with that he was gone."

preparation he wants. He changes his course, and then he begins to lose interest because he finds it difficult to concentrate on any one thing. Many pupils never complete any course. This is a serious situation when one stops to consider that of the four hundred students who enter our high school every year, only about two hundred graduate at the end of four years. The junior high school will do away with these conditions. The study program will be an intermingling of elementary and secondary work. It will better acquaint the student with his future program, and awaken in him an interest in what is to follow.

Not less important than making the student see what lies ahead is helping him better to choose his high school course on a basis of what he has already learned. This new type of school will help him to find himself and to choose his studies with a definite purpose in mind.

The last and perhaps the most important principle of the junior high school is to teach the pupil to rely on himself. Our high school teachers are loud in their assertion that we, the high school students, lack initiative, the ability to think for ourselves. In the elementary school a definite course which everyone must follow is laid down, and the pupil is coerced and prodded into getting this course to the extent that he thinks that the whole thing isn't worthwhile. He gets enough credit to pass, but it is doubtful if he has gained any real benefit. In the high school he makes little progress, and he is time and again confronted by the teacher who looks upon him, as one writer has put it, with this attitude, "You poor simpleton, if you don't know enough to study my subject, you are beneath my notice. Fail and leave as you deserve!"

These difficulties do not come to every pupil, but the majority has to face them. The junior high school will wipe out this waste of the students' time and talents. It will awake in them a new interest in themselves and their futures. There are critics of this plan as there are to every plan, but they are fast disappearing. They say, "Why disrupt the present school system, which seems to be running well enough, to introduce a scheme that hasn't yet been proven worthwhile?" "It will increase taxes!" they shout. Our reply is this: "To discard an idea because it is not hoary with age is not at all in accordance with the American tradition. There is such a thing as being over cautious. Taxes must be paid anyway, and the money, if not used on the new schools, would be spent in trying to repair our present antiquated school buildings."

The junior high school is here to stay. It is not a passing fad. It is not a scheme to rob the taxpayer. It satisfies a long-felt and pressing need, and in due time will hold a high place in the heritage of every American boy and girl.

ETERNAL VIGILANCE

country has been founded. We must be on the alert for any possible infringement of our liberties, and in realizing what it means to be Americans, we must keep alive the true significance of our great ideals. They must never be permitted to be called mere scrawls of the pen upon some yellowed document, but must ever be the basis of our existence. America must do all these things not only that she may keep herself in a healthy state, but also that she may be fit to assume the leadership which will be necessary after Europe arises from its present chaotic state. I repeat—eternal vigilance should be our watch-word—eternal vigilance so that America may truly rise even in these troubled times to a state of rich happiness and fulfillment.

THE LIVING WORD

greater and more abundant life to come. We would see evidence of this fact, were we to visit the tombs of the Egyptian kings where everything was left in readiness for a future existence. The savage Indians of North America even before the white man came were sure of a land somewhere where the Great Spirit had prepared for them a happy hunting-ground. Saint Augustine said, "Man was made for God and he is restless until he rests in Him." From Genesis to Revelation, God thru His word has tried to make known to man his promise of immortality. the blessing—even life forevermore ‘where’ in His presence there will be fullness of joy and at His right hand, pleasures forevermore.” To Christendom, God thru Christ promised that “in my Father’s house are many mansions”—“I go to prepare a place for you—that where I am there ye may be also.” How wonderful that the heart of God is so concerned for his creatures. What a joy to know that these words of hope are not just idle words of man but the Living Word of God Himself whose promises are sure.

in simple account form and furnished by the Extension Service, is corrected and summarized by the County agent at the end of the account year.

There is hardly any limit to the help which the County agent can give. Some things which he can help with are the recommendation of the care of wood lots, the installation of water systems, the raising and care of crops, the grafting and spraying of apple trees, and presenting to the people better use of their land.

The County agent is ready and willing to help in any way he can in his capacity as an Extension Agent. He has the help of the state specialists whenever it is necessary.

The home Demonstration agent works with the housewife. Her job is to help the home maker run her household in the most efficient manner. She teaches the women correct clothing and grooming aids, the value of balanced nutrition, and home management. The women of a community hold meetings at which they work on subject matter such as Smart Cuts in Sewing, Shopping for Your Money’s Worth, and Home Lighting, which has been approved by the Extension Service. The Home Demonstration agent is present at some of the meetings and she always receives a report of the work carried on by them. In answer to requests the Home Demonstration agent makes calls at many homes. She offers suggestions and recommendations to the homemaker. This information is a great help to the housewife.

The 4-H clubs are organized by the 4-H Club agent in communities which are interested in having them. The clubs have their own local leaders. The members enroll in various projects such as sewing, canning, chick raising, dairy and crops. Each club works for its National Seal of Achievement which requires a standard club, that is a club of at least five members, having held at least twelve meetings, one public demonstration, one judging contest, and a local contest. The emblem of the 4-H club is a four leaf clover, green on white, with an “H” on each leaf. The H’s signify head, for clearer thinking; heart, greater loyalty; hands, larger service; and health, better living. The highest scoring senior club member is eligible to attend state camp which is held each year. The state winners are eligible to attend the 4-H Club Congress held at Chicago.

When someone mentions Extension Service, he means the unit which works with the country people for better living and farming.

I have mentioned a few of the many instances in which the Army has performed valiant service in emergencies.

The value of the Army’s discipline and organization always shows up prominently in an emergency.

The Army has done pioneer work also in the educational field. In connection with its administration of the selective service law, it made a most complete survey of the physical, technical, and educational conditions of young American men. Of those examined, about fifty percent were found to be physically subnormal. Only one-third of the men who claimed technical skill had enough to be rated as journeymen. The Army had to give technical training to some million and a quarter men to meet its needs for technical skill. Of three hundred and sixty thousand men tested at random from the general run of the draft, nearly twenty-five percent were unable to read simple English sentences or write simple messages in English. About half of these were foreign-born men, who, though subject to draft for national defense, had not yet learned the tongue of their adopted country.

These data show needs that are vital for national prosperity. To meet them, the Nation must devote its utmost attention to the development of its youth. An upstanding manhood is the foundation of national strength, and the development of manhood is an enterprise in which every citizen must take an active part. It is an enterprise that will succeed in proportion as the people and their government cooperate in every possible way to achieve the great objective of this nation as defined in the preamble of the Constitution.

From these facts it is clear that the United States Army is the pioneer of pioneers. It is the Nation's greatest outpost in fighting fires, floods, disasters, and the enemies of this country. It opens up the wilderness and makes it possible for men to dwell there in comfort and safety. It does all this, not for the glory and profit, but for the common defense and general welfare of the people whom it is created to serve. It stands today as the Nation's best defense against war and threats of war.
