HEADQUARTERS
397th BOMBARDMENT WING (H) (SAC)
UNITED STATES AIR FORCE
DOW AIR FORCE BASE, MAINE

Welcome to Dow Air Force Base. In its role as a Strategic Air Command heavy bomber base, Dow is one of the most vital and historic installations in the United States Air Force.

Dow is located in the suburbs of Bangor, Maine and as such, is one of the eastern-most bases in the Continental United States.

Because of the fact that a permanent change of station is most often a strange and confusing experience, probably the most important questions you have now are those concerning facilities that are available at Dow, the local community, the people with whom you will work and the machinery at your disposal to help minimize "settling in" problems.

We hope the information contained in this guide will answer most of your questions and that you will find Dow and the city of Bangor a friendly community and that you will enjoy your tour here.

EQUIPPED WITH B-26 light bombers during World War II, the 397th Bombardment Wing earned the Distinguished Unit Citation for action in Europe.

History of Dow AFB, Maine

The origin of Dow Air Force Base dates back to August 19, 1923, when General "Billy" Mitchell landed his flight of 26 airplanes, Martin bombers and DeHavilland scout planes, on the F. F. Rich farm, the present location of Dow. This was about two weeks before the famous bombing tests off the Virginia Capes, during which Mitchell's bi-planes sank an obsolete ship in his effort to get more planes.

General Mitchell told Bangor Rotarians that he saw a "great future for Bangor as an airdrome." With what was believed to be the entire strategic air force available at the time, the men of his command set up temporary headquarters (tents) in the present Dow location and took-off on 22 August. Officers told local reporters that the Cooper Road Field (now Dow AFB location) was a superior field to the Boston Airport.

It wasn't until 1940, however, that actual construction began on a large scale. But the vision of Bangor as an air center was foreseen, and in January of 1942, Dow AFB was officially named in honor of Second Lieutenant James F. Dow of the State of Maine, who was killed in a routine training flight when the bomber in which he was flying collided with another plane over New York State.

The base was intended to serve as a forward airdrome for active defense against enemy attacks from Europe and was built to house a heavy bombardment group.

In 1946, the 14th Fighter Wing arrived at Dow. During the time they were at Dow they were accredited with "ironing out the bugs" in the first F-84 Thunderjets. These jets were used extensively in the Korean Conflict.

When the 14th FW left Dow in October of 1948, the Maine Air National Guard began using the base as a training camp. Early 1951 saw the 101st FIW of the Maine Air National Guard called to active duty. At this time the base was under the Air Defense Command.

In April 1951, the 132nd Fighter Wing of the Nebraska-Iowa Air National Guard was called to duty at Dow. This move also brought on a change of command from ADC to the Strategic Air Command. In January 1952, however, the base changed hands again, this time to the Tactical Air Command.

During June 1952, the 132nd transferred to Alexandria AFB, Louisiana and on July 1, Dow was again placed under SAC as the 506th Strategic Fighter Wing moved in.

On January 15, 1954, the 506th became the first operational organization to receive the F-84 Thunderstreak, marking the second time a Dow unit was checked out first with an aircraft product of the Republic Aviation Company.

During the course of World War II, nearly 100,000 combat crew members passed through Dow with their aircraft, either returning from or enroute to the various war theaters. The strength of the base varied from 1,200 to 7,000 personnel.

Dow was established as a permanent base in November of 1954. Just six months later, the mission changed as the Strategic Air Command activated its original air refueling unit at Dow, the 4060th Air Refueling Wing, on March 8, 1955.

The 4060th was like a newborn child out in the snow as it went about its job without any firm policies or operating procedures, this is how it must be for "an original." The mission was carried out on a "trial and error" basis and soon proved "experience is the best teacher."

In December of 1955 Operation "Saint Nick" sent the newly activated 71st ARS to Thule AB, Greenland on TDY. It was the general feeling that this was to serve as a test of the squadron's capabilities as missions "White Oak" and "Tinker Bell" were thrown at them in the bitter north lands. But they proved themselves and turned it into a successful operation.

In the next two years, the 4060th went to the top of SAC's Flying Safety Totem Pole and took the USAF Semi-Annual Flying Safety Award. It marked the first time that an air refueling unit had won the USAF Award.

March of 1957 saw another successful TDY to Thule for the 71st and an equally successful TDY to Harmon AB, Newfoundland for the 341st.

In early 1958, Dow again climbed to the top of the SAC Safety Totem as the Wing continued to fly accident-free. It was in April of the same year that SAC placed the 4060th in the SAC hall of fame for two years of safe flying.

Later that year the 4060th received the second USAF Semi-Annual Flying Safety Award. Now confirmed as one of the most safety-minded bases in the command, Dow took the top spot on the SAC Totem in early 1959

On this same date the first F-101B Voodoo and most of the personnel of the 75th Fighter Interceptor Squadron arrived as an operational unit from Presque Isle AFB Maine, to Dow. A direct descendent of the famous "Flying Tigers," the 75th, holder of the Presidential Unit Citation, is a member of the Air Defense Command.

In July 1961, the 75th received the Air Defense Command's coveted "A" Award for outstanding performance.

On February 1, 1960, the 4060th Air Refueling Wing was inactivated and the 4038th Strategic Wing activated as part of SAC's dispersal concept. The two KC-97 tanker squadrons remained at Dow and the 341st Bombardment Squadron was added.

It was late May 1960 that the 4038th Strategic Wing became the ninth unit to be equipped with the B-52G missile platform bomber and in late 1960 and early 1961, the wing began to receive its first Hound Dog air-to-surface missiles and Quail diversionary missiles. These two missiles are carried by the B-52G bomber.

The 341st Bombardment Squadron became a combat-ready outfit in December 1960.

On February 1, 1963, the curtain was lowered on the proud history of the 4038th Strategic Wing as the unit was deactivated and the 397th Bombardment Group (Medium) was reactivated as the 397th Bombardment Wing (Heavy).

This move was in keeping with SAC policy of retaining in the active force the designations of units which have distinguished themselves in combat. With this transition, the 19th Air Refueling Squadron, which was based at Otis AFB, Mass., as part of the wing's dispersal plan, was placed under another wing.

Most of Dow's units adopted the 297th title. However, the 341st Bombardment Squadron changed to the 596th Bombardment Squadron. This squadron was assigned to the 397th during WWII.

History of 397th Bomb Wing

The 397th came into existence as the 397th Bombardment Group (Medium) on April 20, 1943 at MacDill AFB, Fla. Six months later, the group began a series of moves that took them to Avon Park Bombing Range, Fla., and Hunter Field, Ga.

Training with B-26 aircraft, the group moved to England in March 1944 and was assigned to the Ninth Air Force. They participated in operations in preparation for the Normandy invasion by attacking V-weapons sites, bridges, coastal defenses, marshaling yards and airfields.

The 397th hit strong points in France on D-Day and assisted ground forces throughout the remainder of the Normandy campaign by bombing fuel dumps, defending areas and other objectives.

After moving to the Continent in August 1944, the group struck enemy positions at St. Malo and Brest and bombed targets in the Rouen area as Allied armies swept across the Seine and advanced to the Siegfried Line.

Moving into Germany in September, the B-26s were kept busy striking enemy communications, bridges, and storage depots. They also participated in the Battle of the Bulge during December 1944 and January 1945.

December 23, 1944, the group withstood heavy flak and fighter attacks and went on to destroy a railway bridge at Eller, a vital link in the enemy's supply line across the Moselle. For this heroic mission, the unit was presented the Distinguished Unit Citation.

They continued to support the Allied drive into Germany until April 1945. After the war, the 397th returned to the United States. Some personnel were reassigned to other units which also had B-26 aircraft. The unit was inactivated on January 6, 1946, and remained in that status for over 17 years.

Capehart

Dow has 1,010 Capehart units, 530 units were completed in the fall of 1959 and 480 units completed in January 1963. Quarters are landscaped and equipped with range, refrigerator, washer, dryer, and garbage disposal. Units are assigned by rank and date of rank according to family size. Dow's Capehart units are located in two areas off base; 680 units are located on Bangor's outer Ohio Street about three miles from the base and 330 units are located just outside Gate 7 by the Northeast Airlines terminal on Union Street. A breakdown of available units follows:

Bedroom Size	Field Grade	Company Grade	Enlisted
4	26 Single	56 Duplex	64 Duplex
3	68 Duplex	120 Fourplex	506 Multiplex
2	0	30 Fourplex	130 Multiplex

Fairmount Terrace

Fairmount Terrace is also known as GI Village and is located off Union Street between 13th Street and Elizabeth Avenue. This area is made up of 75 units for married enlisted personnel. Units are assigned in the same manner as Capehart units to Staff Sergeants and Airmen First Class with over four years service.

Off Base Housing

Adequate family housing in the Bangor-Brewer, Maine area is limited. Personnel should not bring families until suitable housing can be found. The Family Services Office (Bldg. T-16) and the Bangor Chamber of Commerce (on Franklin Street, behind W. T. Grant Store) maintain files of all available rentals in the area. Personnel seeking off-base housing should be prepared to pay refundable deposits on gas, electricity and telephone. Most of the homes in and around Bangor are 50 or more years old, but they compensate for what they lack in modern convenience with their distinctive "old New England" charm. Although the rents may seem high in comparison with other sections of the country, they are on a par with other northern states.

DINING FACILITIES

Dow has two modern dining halls that are considered among the best in Eighth Air Force. Located directly across from the airmen's dormitories, (Bldgs. S-359 and S-360), the two facilities are named in honor of two Air Force heroes of WWII.

Chennault Dining Hall was named in honor of the late Lt. Gen. Claire L. Chennault, famed leader of the WWII "Flying Tigers" and commander of the wartime 14th Air Force in the China-Burma-India Theater.

Kelly Dining Hall was named for Capt. Colin P. Kelly, an Army pilot. On December 9, 1941, Captain Kelly was the pilot of a bomber that destroyed a Japanese battleship following the attack on Pearl Harbor. When his airplane was damaged by enemy fire, he ordered the crew to bail out and he died in the crash. He was posthumously awarded the Distinguished Service Cross.

Dining hall hours are as follows:

CHENNAULT

Breakfast	0600-0830
Lunch	1100-1300
Supper	1630-1800

CHOW LINE—Everything from soup to nuts await Dowmen at the base dining halls. Personnel of the 397th Food Service Squadron prepare well balanced meals three times a day, everyday, for the hungry Dowmen.

KELLY

Breakfast	0600-0830
Lunch	1100-1300
Supper	1630-1800

Although regular hours prevail for service, transient and newly arrived personnel can be accommodated around-the-clock.

In addition, two dining facilities are maintained in both alert areas and the In-flight Kitchen is located in the Base Ops Terminal, Bldg. S-21.

WELCOME TO DOW—Intransient crewmembers, distinguished visitors and guests that touch down on Dow's flight line are greeted by a sign on Base Operations that reads, "Welcome To Dow Air Force Base — Home of 397th Bombardment Wing." All flight plans are filed in the Base Operations building located in Bldg. P-121.

Meetings are held at 1330 on the first and third Monday in the Base Service Club.

Overseas Women's Club

In 1957 a group of Dow wives who were born outside the North American continent formed the Overseas Women's Club. Today members from 14 countries actively engage in social and charity pursuits. Their meetings are held at 1930 on the third Wednesday of the month at the Bangor YWCA.

TransAtlantic Brides

Open to all British wives of American, Canadian and ex-servicemen, Bangor's branch of the TBPA is part of a nationwide organization and the fourth branch in Maine. The club offers planned trips across the Atlantic at greatly reduced rates, which enables many British wives to return home for family reunions.

The flight program also works in reverse, by allowing British families to visit here. Meetings are held at 1930 on the first Wednesday at the Hammond Street Congregational Church, Bangor.

FAMILY SERVICES VOLUNTEER—Many Dow wives volunteer their time to help out in the Family Services program.

A Strategic Air Command KC-135 Refuels A B-52 Bomber.

The Strategic Air Command

Although, today, the bomber still dominates the inventory, SAC has become a truly "mixed" force of manned and unmanned weapon systems with all three missile systems — Atlas, Titan and Minutemen — now on operational sites. During the past months, an increasing number of new operational sites have been turned over to the command.

The Atlas, first ICBM guardian of this nation (now with the improved "E" and "F" series operational) is still playing a major deterrent role. More recently, however, the Titan I silo-stored missile, has become operational. In the near future SAC's missile force will be augmented by the Titan II two-stage, silo-fired missile, and the solid-fuel, silo-fired Minuteman.

In the event of war, General Power would direct his far-flung force from the underground command post at SAC headquarters at Offutt. Should the headquarters be destroyed, continuity of command is assured by use of the Airborne Command Post — a specially-equipped KC-125 jet tanker with a general officer aboard. The Airborne Command Post is linked to all SAC bomber and missile bases by single side-band radio which enables the commander in chief to communicate with SAC crews in flight around the world.

The Strategic Air Command, with its arsenal of manned aircraft and a rapidly increasing inventory of ICBMs, is the United States Air Force's long-range nuclear strike force.

General Thomas S. Power is commander in chief of SAC. The chain of command proceeds from the President to the Secretary of Defense, acting as his agent, through the Joint Chiefs of Staff to the SAC commander.

The command consists of a world-wide network of approximately 80 bases, over 280,000 personnel, 2,600 tactical aircraft, and ICBM force and over 23 billion dollars assets. The Strategic Air Command has four numbered air forces under the headquarters at Offutt AFB, Omaha, Neb. — the Second Air Force at Barksdale AFB, La.; the Eighth Air Force at Westover AFB, Mass.; the Fifteenth Air Force at March AFB, Calif.; and the Sixteenth Air Force at Torrejon AB, Spain — and three air divisions: the 7th AD in the United Kingdom, the 3d AD, Guam, the 1st Strategic Aerospace Division at Vandenberg AFB, Calif.

SAC's primary mission is to prevent nuclear war by the ability to deliver nuclear striking power on demand. By maintaining a bomber and missile aerospace force of unquestioned strength SAC provides a "strategic umbrella" for the free world. Should its primary mission fail, SAC is prepared to survive a massive surprise attack and destroy the enemy's capability to wage further war.

Bangor, Maine

Adjacent to Dow is Bangor, the "Queen City" and the third largest city in the State of Maine. Bangor is located at the junction of the Kenduskeag Stream and the Penobscot River in East Central Maine.

Just sixty miles from the Atlantic Ocean, the city of Bangor with its population of over 38,000, is primarily a commercial center with numerous diversified industries including such products as pulp, wood, wood products, wood tools, machinery, snowplows, building materials, metal products, clothing, sports equipment and furs.

The people of Bangor are proud of the fact that their city is served by an airline and an interstate and local bus system. It is said that Bangor is "Where all Maine roads meet."

Bangor is the hub of U. S. Highways 1 and 2 and state highways 15, 100, 222, and U. S. Interstate 95.

Bangor is typical of New England with its stately residences on wide and well-shaded streets. The business district of the city is situated on Main, Hammond, Exchange, Central and Franklin Streets and Pickering Square.

A city is sometimes judged by its spiritual understandings and belief — Bangor has 35 churches representing nearly all denominations.

Parks, both large and small, are located in nearly all sections of the city. Cascades Park, on outer State Street, with its vari-colored falls and fountains is a sight to behold every summer night. Other large parks are located on Royal Road and Ohio Street. Memorial parks include: Norumbega Mall in downtown Bangor, a memorial to the war dead; Davenport Park, where the original shield of the Battleship Maine is enshrined; a mall opposite Norumbega Mall, just off Central Street, has on its beautiful grounds a statue of Statesman Hannibal Hamlin, First Vice President under Abe Lincoln, and cannons taken from the bottom of Maine waters.

Two bridges across the Penobscot River lead to the City of Brewer. The old bridge, as it is called, runs from Bangor's Washington Street, just east of the railroad depot, to the northern edge of the business district of Brewer. The new toll bridge leads directly into the heart of Brewer's business section from Union Street in Bangor. The price to cross the bridge is ten cents per crossing, or if you like, you can purchase a quantity of crossing tickets at a reduced rate.

Facts About Bangor's Past

- 1614—Captain John Smith, of Pocahontas fame, explored the Penobscot Bay region.
- 1626—Myles Standish, John Alden and others from Plymouth, made occasional visits to the Penobscot River region in the "Good Hope" for trade in furs with the Indians.
- 1779—Castine was taken possession of by the British and a large Fort was started. Massachusetts sent a fleet of 23 war and transport vessels under Commodore Saltonstall, with about 1,000 men under Gen. Lovell, to dispossess the British. Gen. Wadsworth (poet Longfellow's grandfather) was second in command and Lt. Col. Paul Revere in charge of artillery. The American fleet was dispersed by four British ships, and without firing a shot the American ships were destroyed by their own crews. About 20 vessels escaped up the Penobscot, ten of which reached Bangor and were blown up near the mouth of the Kenduskeag Stream. This was called the "Penobscot Expedition," and being so unfortunate, is not noted in the history books.
- 1804—Daniel Webster, as a young man, came to Bangor to practice law. After a short time he changed his plans and returned to New Hampshire.
- 1835—"Veazie Railroad," the first railroad in Maine and the second railroad in the United States, ran between Bangor and Old Town. Also, Daniel Webster was a visitor here, and made his famous "Bangor Speech" from the portico of the Bangor House, and told of his visit of thirty years before.
- 1842—The Northeastern Boundary Dispute involving Maine and New Brunswick line was settled amicably by the Webster-Ashburton Treaty in 1842, following the so-called Bloodless Aroostook War in 1839, when American soldiers marched from Bangor to Aroostook County. General Winfield Scott came to Bangor and on his staff was Robert E. Lee.
- 1870-90—Bangor was recognized everywhere as the largest lumber port in the world. More than 125,000,000 feet a year shipped to foreign countries from the port of Bangor. The harbor of Bangor daily filled with foreign ships.
- 1871—President U. S. Grant visited Bangor to open the "European and North American Railway" between Bangor, Me., and St. John, N.B.
- 1911—Bangor's big fire was on April 30, 1911. More than 50 acres of business and residential sections burned.
- 1922—Bangor erected a monument in Davenport Park as a memorial to the sailors of the Spanish-American War. Enshrined is the original shield of the Battleship Maine, which was blown up in Havana Harbor in 1898.
- 1937—October 12, 1937 "The Brady Gang" of desperate robbers and murderers ("Public Enemies No. 1") while in Bangor to buy weapons, were being hunted by the F.B.I. The leader, Al Brady, and one of his associates, Clarence Shaffer, were killed in a gun battle on Central Street. Others captured alive were sent to Indiana, tried and electrocuted.

CLIFFS—Exciting Otter Cliffs are located in Acadia National Park. The park also offers picnicking, camping, bathing, hiking, boating, museums and nature guide service.

CAVES, TOO—Few examples of the sea's destructive power along Acadia's shores are more dramatic than Anemone Cave. The cave is located in Acadia National Park on Mount Desert Island.

BLUENOSE FERRY—For sightseeing at its best, ride the Bluenose Ferry. It makes three trips a week from Bar Harbor, Maine to Yarmouth, Nova Scotia. For more information on the Ferry ride, contact the Ferry Terminal at Bar Harbor. Bluenose is owned and operated by the Canadian National Railway Co.

SCENIC HARBOR—This typical harbor scene was captured on film at Corea, Maine.

BAR HARBOR AREA

This famed seaside resort, located on Mt. Desert Island, just 50 miles from Bangor, has everything to make your vacation here the most memorable of all. The town itself hugs the shore of historic Frenchman's Bay, and nestles at the foot of beautiful Cadillac Mountain. The area still retains the rugged beauty of sea and forest and mountain that greeted the eyes of Champlain when he first entered Frenchman's Bay in 1604.

Bar Harbor is almost wholly surrounded by the mountains and the forests of Acadia National Park. Eighteen mountains literally rise out of the sea, and, in the cool green valleys between, there are twenty-six lakes and ponds. The ocean front scenery typifies the traditional rock-bound coast of Maine, and the shore line is broken into numerous bays and harbors by the many bold and rugged headlands projecting into the sea.

The facilities of Acadia National Park are available to the public without charge. The park provides free camping sites in beautiful wooded areas; many miles of well-kept foot paths wind their way through the pine forests and along the shores of both lake and ocean. Mountain trails, well-marked and designed for safety, offer ideal conditions for climbing enthusiasts. Rangers of the National Park Service conduct a schedule of guided nature-study trips to all points within the park, and weekly camp fire evenings are a feature of the summer season.

GOOD EATING

One of the prime delights of a Maine vacation is the enjoyment of Maine home-cooked foods prepared by men and women who have made it their business for years to provide good eating.

Until you have enjoyed the thrill of a real "Down East" meal, whether it be on the seafood or mainland side, you have been missing one of the joys of living known to Maine vacationists for many years.

Whether it be the regal lobster, prepared in any one of a score of delectable ways, or the other products of the coastal fisheries, such as clams, sardines, crab meat, delicious fish species or chowders, or whether it be the inland dishes of fresh meats, salmon, trout, or the other inland fish surrounded by crisp and flavorful Maine vegetables, hot biscuits and other tasty accessories, your Maine host can place a spread before you that even few kings can today enjoy.

The world's best food, genial hospitality, some of the Nation's most outstanding scenic wonders, ample facilities for every type of vacation — small wonder so many thousands return to Maine year after year.

Maine in the Summer

A summer in Maine might find you swimming, water skiing, picnicking, hiking, fishing and in general relaxing in that special downeast invigorating and refreshing air.

Small boating in Maine is just plain fun. Service facilities such as marinas, public docks and other launching sites where you can get your craft water-borne, are commonly available along the coast and on many of Maine's larger lakes.

For your added pleasure as you sample Maine's small boating attractions, the state maintains many camp sites and lunch grounds. These are conveniently located along through highways and popular waterways.

Wherever you go in Maine, you'll find ever-changing scenic beauty. The people, however, are the same—hospitable, friendly and anxious to help you enjoy your boating to the fullest.

Maine waters are ideally suited for all water sports, water skiing in particular. Maine's clean waters add zest to the swimming involved.

The only thing that beats the excitement of planning a canoe trip in Maine is the actual moment when you start your motor or begin to paddle the peaceful waters or race down rushing, white-water rivers. In Maine there are limitless canoeing possibilities.

Exploring Maine's jagged coastline is a never-to-be-forgotten cruising experience, and with 128 navigable ports.

Highlighting Bluehill and Frenchman's Bay, two of the most popular cruising grounds, is Acadia National Park, famous for its beautiful seashore, mountains, lakes and forest. For unspoiled charm and rare scenic beauty, the Washington County coast has no peer, with its unique Quoddy tidal area and the famed off-shore islands between Canada and Maine.

If fishing is part of your boating fun, then you will be happily surprised at the variety and profusion of Maine's fresh water game fish. (See Fishing in Maine)

Maine in the Winter

Each year a greater number of people are discovering the opportunities for relaxation and enjoyment in the winter season. Whether this takes the form of skiing and winter sports or simply a restful stay at one of the many hotels, motels and lodges that remain open year-round, a winter vacation in Maine is something to remember.

The State of Maine, with 33,040 square miles of all grades of forested terrain — majestic pine and spruce in a blanket of white — is a veritable “Christmas Tree Land” from December to April.

For the skier, Maine has everything. Modern uphill devices, all classes of slopes, trails and jumps.

Chair lifts, T-bars, Poma lifts and tows are located in most every ski region of the state.

Watch the daily newspapers and listen to sport casts on the radio and television for skiing conditions in the state of Maine.

The major ski areas in Maine, located on Pleasant Mountain, Bridgton, Sugarloaf Mountain in Kingfield, Saddleback, Squaw Mountain, Ski Horse, and the Sunday River Skiway, just outside of Bethel are situated in the so-called “snow belt” where good skiing is the rule throughout the season with good snow conditions remaining well into spring.

DEER—The State of Maine is proud of the outstanding hunting records which have been established in her state over the years. Bucks weighing more than 400 pounds, live weight, have been taken in Maine, and it is doubted if any heavier whitetails are taken anywhere on the continent.

HUNTING

Variety is the word for Maine hunting. With more than 17,000,000 acres of forest lands and a total area nearly as large as the other five New England states combined, Maine's game population represents the greatest wildlife resource of any state in the nation.

Whether you decide to match wits with a crafty black bear, bag the biggest whitetail deer on the continent, thrill to the ringing cry of coon hounds under a frosty autumn moon, snap into action at the sound of rising wings in the meadow, or enjoy the best waterfowl shooting on the Atlantic coast — it's all here in the Pine Tree State.

The State of Maine is proud of the outstanding hunting records which have been established in her state over the years. Bucks weighing over 400 pounds live weight have been taken in Maine, and it is doubted if any heavier whitetails are taken anywhere on the continent. It is estimated that the average sportsman's chance of bringing back a deer over 200 pounds is one in thirty-five.

Deer hunting in Maine rates easily as the top activity for the outdoorsman who loves a gun or a bow. According to experts, Maine deer are outstanding specimens.

The use of both rifles and shotguns is permissible in Maine for deer hunting. Rifles are by far the most popular and much more practical except in a few instances where thick brush and close shots are the rule.

Black bear hunting is rugged in Maine. Maine's black bears are crafty, shy and much more difficult to stalk than deer. In weight they run from cub-size to nearly 500 pounds. When frightened they rip through woods at terrific speeds and present the poorest of targets. There is no closed black bear season in Maine. Late fall and mid-October to the last of November is probably the best time to hunt bear.

FISHING AT ITS BEST—Atlantic Salmon are offered as the king of game fish in Washington County's Narraguagus, Dennys, Pleasant, Machias and Orange Rivers. These are now considered the best spots in the United States for Atlantic Salmon fishing.

MOOSEHEAD LAKE—About 110 miles northwest of Bangor is Moosehead Lake, which is 40 miles long and the longest in the State. Moosehead is famous the world over for its game fish.

The best place to hunt for bear is in areas where half-frozen apples still cling to remote trees during the late fall months, deserted lumber camps and hunting lodges garbage dumps.

Dogs may be used in bear hunting in Maine, however, not during open season on deer.

Moose hunting is prohibited in Maine as they are protected by law. The hunter, however, who encounters one while in the woods will never forget the experience. Standing from six to seven feet at the shoulder and with antler spreads often exceeding 80 inches, the big bulls present a magnificent spectacle. This is the cameramans' dream as this "big baby" is the most photogenic game animal in North America.

Pheasant in many instances will be found in farming sections and pasture lands much the same as the state's ruffed grouse. They are, however, largely confined to the southern and coastal counties of the state. Many of these birds are reared and released annually by the Maine Department of Inland Fisheries and Game. Pheasant are smart, fast on the wing and know all the tricks of hide and seek. A good bird dog is advisable, but the average hunter has been known to "walk up" his limit without too much trouble.

Woodcock hunting is considered better in the State of Maine than in any other state. The Pine Tree State is one of the best natural breeding grounds of these much sought after game birds in the country. Any hunter who has witnessed the up and down, zig-zag flight of a woodcock realizes that this is a really difficult bird to bring down. The woodcock will often freeze and fail to flush for a walking hunter. If you think you are a good wing shot, try Maine's woodcock. If you are a beginner, at least try Maine, the spot where your chances are best.

Duck shooting thrills the experts as the nearly 2,500 miles of coastline, with bays, peninsulas, beaches and marshlands are offered in Maine. Beyond a doubt, this makes for the best, honest-to-goodness waterfowl shooting on the North Atlantic Coast as Maine is the first state in this country that birds fly over when on their southward flight.

Fox, Bobcat and Rabbit are among the other favorite game animals hunted in the State of Maine.

FISHING

In these days of increased interest in fishing and other forms of outdoor recreation, Maine stands in an enviable position. Whether it be the silvery, lightning-like acrobatics of a landlocked salmon "tail-walking" on the end of your line, the powerful deep surge of a heavy squaretail or the explosive tactics of a fighting black bass, fishing is good in the State of Maine.

Well worth bearing in mind is the fact that Maine, with her 2,500 miles of coastline and sandy beaches, offers some of the best salt water fishing on the North Atlantic Coast. Maine invites you as a fisherman and a sportsman to enjoy fishing in her some 2,400 lakes and ponds, 5,500 rippling brooks, streams and rivers.

Landlocked Salmon are ready for action the minute ice leaves the lakes and ponds in the spring (usually in latter April). Experts say that fly-fishing with wet flies of the conventional type as well as many patterns of streamer fly design also work exceptionally well at this time of the year. Later, as the temperatures rise, trolling with deep-going spoons (revolving variety) and live bait usually bring some excellent catches.

Brook Trout fishing in Maine is a special sport of fun all by itself. These speckled beauties can be found in small, clear-cold water brooks in every section of the state. From the eight and nine inchers to the five and six pound "lunkers" there are thrills galore for the trout fishermen in Maine.

Small mouthed black bass, frequently found in more than 300 of the Pine Tree State's clear, cool waters, rise to almost any bait or fly.

White Perch are among the easiest fish to catch in the State of Maine. Rated as one of the very best panfish, these snappy little dark-colored hustlers are found in great numbers and furnish plenty of action. Still fishing from a dock or anchored boat with ordinary angle worms, minnows or frogs' legs hardly ever fails to get results.

Atlantic Salmon are offered as the king of game-fish in Washington County's Narraguagus, Dennys, Pleasant, Machias and Orange Rivers. These are now considered the best spots in the United States for Atlantic Salmon fishing. Atlantic Salmon in these rivers vary from eight to nearly thirty pounds in weight. Fly fishing is the order of the day with these pesky fighters.

Other popular catches are: Togue, brown trout, pickerel, striped bass and tuna.

MADE IN MAINE

Maine produces everything from toothpicks to destroyers. Downeast craftsmen are noted in fact and fiction as builders of ships; inventors; and as possessors of an abundance of what has come to be known as "Yankee ingenuity." It produces items as different as wooden checkers and parts of jet plane engines.

Mostly Maine is a forest state with over 16 million acres in forest land, the harvest of which supplies nearly 1,000 wood-using plants which in turn employ over 34 per cent of the wage earners of the State. The manufacture of paper products is the leading wood industry with spruce and fir the principal species used. Wood turning shops using hardwoods, principally birch, are the industrial backbone of many Maine communities. White pine, the State's official tree, is the major source of lumber for home building and construction. The largest producer of paper plates is located in Central Maine, and the largest newsprint producer has its home in the Pine Tree State.

Scattered over the State the visitor will find paper mills, cotton mills, wood and worsted mills, shoe factories, factories producing textile machinery, machinery tools, wood turnings and fabricated metal products.

Mineral production at present is almost entirely of non-metallics. Limestone beds in Maine have been in production for 125 years; this deposit also supports one of the nation's largest cement concerns. The feldspar industry accounts for 25 percent of the nation's output. Maine granite has been used in buildings like the extension of the House of Representatives in Washington, D. C., Grant's Tomb and the Philadelphia Mint. Specimens of the highly prized tourmalines of Maine are contained in major collections the world over. Northern Maine contains a large source of low grade manganese, iron ore — the same region noted for the tasty Maine potato.

Food and kindred products account for a payroll at least as large as the footwear industry. Situated as it is, Maine is adjacent to over 200,000 square miles of the world's finest fishing territory. In 1957 fish and shellfish, including the famous Maine lobster, valued at $17 million were caught by eleven thousand fishermen.

PICNIC AREA—Another fine picnic area in Maine is Baxter State Park, near Greenville.

BIG PAUL—This statue of Paul Bunyan, the Legendary Symbol of the era when Bangor was the lumber Capital of the World, was erected in 1959 during the 125th Anniversary of the Incorporation of the City. Paul stands 31 feet above the pedestal and weighs 1½ tons. He may be seen and photographed at his location on lower Main Street near the Municipal Auditorium.

Maine is gaining as a foremost place in the East in canning and freezing industries. Maine corn, fish, clam chowder, baked beans, sardines and blueberries are famous the country over.

The poultry business in Maine has had a spectacular rise, returning $25 million in 1947 and $65 million in 1957.

Other famous products include: Snowshoes (Admiral Peary took a pair to the North Pole), skis, fishing rods and canoes.

CLIMATE

The U. S. Department of Commerce, Weather Bureau annual meteorological summary, says "Maine has the most healthful climate in the United States and equals any in the world, not only in the summer but also, contrary to belief, in the winter.

"Sunshine averages close to 60 percent for the year and monthly averages vary little during the changes of seasons. Frequently the winter has more sunny days than the summer.

"It is a fact that southern Maine has more actual hours of sunshine during the months of June, July, August and September than the famous winter resorts of Florida, Georgia, Texas and California have during the winter months of November, December, January and February."
